NEXT LEVEL INTERVIEW HACKS

What is a behavioural Interview?

S	Situation
T	Task
A	Action
R	Result

A behavioural interview consists of competency-based questions where the candidate needs to provide real-life examples. The STAR method is a great way to answer them.

Thank-you notes: old fashioned or vital?

Thank-you notes can really be the perfect finishing touch if you use them well. Here are some key ingredients for a good interview follow up note:

- Mention a moment that resonated during the interview.
- Reiterate why you're interested in the role.
- Address anything you could have answered better during the interview.
- Keep it concise, 2-3 short paragraphs max.

Rejection... Part of the natural path when job searching

A useful exercise when receiving a rejection:

1. You should congratulate yourself for getting this far in the selection process – well done!
2. Think about what have you learned during the process
3. Try to reply to the rejection received with a positive acknowledgment – if not this time, maybe the next!
4. Most importantly, stay positive.
